FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

THE CONJURING: THE DEVIL MADE ME DO IT* IN THEATERS AND ON HBO MAX JUNE 4TH

The third chapter of the Conjuring universe returns to screens after the delay of production and release due to the coronavirus. Based on a actual murder trial that took place in Connecticut in 1981, demonologists Ed and Lorraine Warren investigate an exorcism that resulted in the first American murder trial that used demonic possession as a defense.

Directed by Michael Chaves (director of The Curse of La Llorona), with the help of David Leslie Johnson-McGoldrick (writer of Orphan and The Conjuring 2) and James Wan (writer of Insidious: Chapter 2 and The Conjuring 2), the dynamic trio worked assiduously to produce a film that already has an 84% audience score on Rotten Tomatoes.

HBO Max will be showing the movie for a month on its platform and offers a 7-day free trial. To stream The Conjuring: The Devil Made Me Do It and discover more film and television shows on the platform, check out <https://www.hbomax.com/>.
